Weather Key Points

Regional Operations Center

Western Region

Sunday, September 18

- Gusty winds of 15-25 mph across the southern half of the state Sunday will slightly increase fire weather concerns, especially over the Sierra and southern mountains
- Gusty winds to 45 mph are expected along the immediate coast and coastal hills from Sonoma County southward to Big Sur Sunday and Monday
- Gusty winds will develop across the deserts and mountains of southern California for Monday through Wednesday
 - Gusts up to 45 mph could produce difficult driving conditions for high profile vehicles

Weather Key Points

Regional Operations Center

Western Region

Sunday, September 18

- Widespread light to moderate rainfall is expected for northern and central California through the first half of the week
 - The rainfall will primarily be beneficial for the state, and there are not currently any significant burn scar concerns. However, isolated burn scar impacts are not out of the question, as the chance of thunderstorms increases Sunday and Monday.
 - Greatest rainfall amounts in the North Bay areas with 1 to 3 inches through Tuesday, with highest amounts Sunday into Monday
 - Coastal Mountain ranges like the Santa Cruz and Santa Lucia's generally 1 to 2 inches of rainfall expected through Tuesday
 - Some light snow is also possible above about 8500 feet above sea level over the high Sierra Sunday through Wednesday, though no significant accumulation is expected at this time
- Drier and warmer weather will develop for much of the state for Thursday through Saturday
